Compound Medications

Review of the literature found there was no clinical evidence that compounded medications are more effective than the use of the individual drugs (ingredients) separately.

The Division will only approve compounded medications for unique patient-specific requirements; i.e., allergy or inability to swallow. The provider will be required to document in the medical record the indication for the compounded medication, in addition to proof that conventional therapy has been tried and failed.

In the absence of specific indications, compound medications will be denied.
